

Pet owners can find it difficult to monitor their pet's blood sugar levels from home. This means that most pet owners have all diabetes monitoring done at the vet, which can run up the already expensive costs of owning a diabetic pet.

Monitor your pet's diabetes from the comfort of your home

Genteel

No more visits to the vet just to test blood sugar, now test at home with Genteel with NO PAIN for your pet.

As a pet owner you may find it difficult to monitor your pet's blood sugar levels from home. This means that most pet parents have all diabetes monitoring done at the vet, which can run up the already expensive costs of owning a diabetic pet.

Genteel allows pet owners to easily check blood glucose levels at home! Testing at home helps you and your vet determine the best way to regulate your pet's diabetes without having to make multiple trips to the vet.

Knowing if a pet is experiencing a 'high' or 'low' without an emergency trip to the vet can not only save money, but can also mean it is more comfortable managing their diabetes at home. By testing more frequently pet owners have a better snapshot of what is causing changes in blood sugar and can help the vet and the owner come up with the best treatment plan for the pet.

Most diabetic pet owners don't test at home because the difficulty with getting enough or any blood at all. Genteel makes testing at home easier because our patented vacuum helps by drawing the blood to the surface. No more wasted test-strips, get the perfect amount of blood the first time.